

LARGE CONFERENCE ROOM

SPACE DESCRIPTION

Large Conference Rooms are enclosed rooms designed to accommodate groups of (12) people or more. These spaces are designed for gatherings of both internal teams and external partners. They are intended to promote private conversation yet have visible transparency to the open office. These spaces shall accommodate virtual meetings and allow employees to connect their devices for screen sharing.

Large Conference Rooms shall have a countertop with base storage below. Room dimensions and furniture must be planned and coordinated for comfortable distance between the edge of the table and wall.

These rooms have the potential to become a focal point in open office design. Consideration of placement should be given to promote visual interest.

Room size shall be adjusted for anticipated room capacity.
